The Boundary between the British and the Russian Empires on the North-West Coast of America.—Memoir by the St. Pancras Committee, London.

Concluded from last issue.

According to Sir George Simpson, it appears that in making out the lease of Russian territory, a very important position in the British side of the boundary has been recognized as Russian.

His description of the territory included in the lease is thus brought out, and again by Mr. Labouchere:—"1025. Besides your own territory, I think you administer a portion of the territory which belongs to Russia, under some arrangement with the Russian company. This is a margin of coast marked yellow in the map from 54° 40' up to Cross Sound, which we have rented from the Russian American Company for a term of years."

"1027. Is that the whole of that strip?—The strip goes on to Mount St. Elias."

"1028. Where does it begin?—Near Fort Simpson in latitude 54° 40'. It goes up to Mount St. Elias which is further north."

"1029. Is it the whole of that strip which is included between the British Territory and the sea?—We have only rented the part between Fort Simpson and Cross Sound."

We look at the map, and find that Fort Simpson and all the land near it is British, according to the treaty of St. Petersburg. Between it and the Russian territory rolls an arm of the sea called Dixon's Entrance, terminating in Portland Channel, in latitude 50°. If Sir George Simpson meant to describe the territory on the Russian side of the water, it is inconceivable that he should say that it is as being near a fort on the other side. If the Emperor of the French were to concede the line of railway from Calais to Paris to the South Eastern Company, they would scarcely describe the concession as commencing in the neighborhood of Dover.

A correspondence is subjoined on this subject with the Colonial Office, and another with Sir George Simpson. The former declines giving any information on the subject and does so on the grounds of refusing to enter into a discussion which had not been proposed. Sir George Simpson gives an explanation which is an admission. This Committee sent to him the description of the boundary, copied from the treaty. In his reply he describes the Russian boundary as an imaginary line drawn, not at 54° but at 54° 40'. The Russian territory, on the contrary, where it abuts upon the English always north of 55°.

A reference to the fourth article of the treaty shows that the boundary is never an imaginary or geocentric line, but is one drawn in a certain relation either to the indentation of the coast or to the position of the mouth of a river.

Sir George Simpson has substituted for the boundary defined by the treaty with England that constructively recognized by the treaty with the United States, and for an official document, the American description of it. He persists in his error, even when it is pointed out, and hopes it will do no harm, because "the boundary defined by treaty, and has never been called in question."

The northern boundary originally proposed for the Colony of British Columbia was 55° north latitude. This would have deprived the Colony of the navigation of Simpson's river, and would thus have concealed for some years any arrangements respecting the territory for some months, near Fort Simpson. Simpson's river has been made an actual boundary, and it is to be hoped that, as the article establishing British Columbia includes the country near Fort Simpson, there can be no dispute about the boundaries of that Colony. The strip of land however, between Simpson's river and Portland Channel, though clearly British by the treaty, is not included in the boundaries of the Colony, and is included in the strip described by Sir George Simpson as rented by the Hudson's Bay Company from Russia. When, therefore, this country is not British, has already obtained on this coast by a claim void of any foundation, it is impossible to ignore the danger that may arise from a claim that has already met with a recognition however informal and unauthorized. It seems, therefore, to be desirable that a statement of the case should be made at the opening of the next session, the form of a petition to Parliament, to appoint a select committee to inquire into this case, and to obtain the production of the papers respecting the negotiation of the Treaty of 1825, and respecting any negotiations between the Hudson's Bay Company and the Russian American Fur Company, and between the English and the Russian Governments.

The Illegality of Cabinets.

BY A CABINET MINISTER.

SIR G. C. LEWIS.—The House of Commons was not like a court of Justice, which only took notice of the facts proved before it. * * * The hon. gentleman asked for a list of Ministers of the Crown but it was not very clear what was meant by that. Did he intend to include the officers of the Household who were also Ministers of the Crown, or the Under Secretaries of the State? It would be necessary, if the motion were agreed to, that some more precise language should be used in it. Again, the hon. gentleman required Cabinet Ministers to be distinguished from others; but it was well known that the Cabinet was not recognised by the constitution of this country; the House of Commons had never recognised the existence of such a council in any of its authentic acts—it was merely a voluntary meeting of certain Ministers, and the archives of the country contained no means of distinguishing between a Cabinet Minister and any other.—House of Commons, July 20.

Here is an avowal on the part of the Government of all we have been saying and that on the point most monstrous and incredible, being nothing less than the assertion of the unconstitutional existence of the Government of this land. If this is of no avail for Englishmen, surely it may at least serve to destroy that misestimate of England in foreign nations, out of which have come the difficulties of the world.—Free Press.

NEW GOLD FIELDS.—Major Alexander Culbertson, of the American Fur Company has arrived in St. Louis direct from the Upper Missouri. He brings thirteen hundred dollars in gold dust, obtained on the divide between the Missouri and Columbia rivers. It is lump gold not of fine quality, being worth only fourteen or fifteen dollars per ounce, but plenty in that locality, which is known as Gov. Steven's Pass. The sources of the two streams are so near that he drank water out of the Missouri on the east side of the Rocky Mountain, and half an hour after drank out of the Columbia on the Pacific slope.—St. Louis Paper.

LEGALITY OF PUBLIC MEETINGS.

It may be interesting to the public to know how far it is lawful for them to meet together for the discussion of popular questions. We find that the authorities give the following definition of an unlawful assembly: "When three persons or more shall assemble together with an intent mutually to assist one another against any one who shall oppose them in the execution of some enterprise of a private nature, with force or violence, against the peace, or to the manifest terror of the people whether the act intended were of itself lawful or unlawful; and if they only meet to such purpose or intent although they shall after depart of their own accord without doing anything, this is an unlawful assembly." The intention of the meeting therefore is the criterion by which its character can be determined: and the hour of meeting as well as the subject of discussion may be evidence of this intention. But a meeting for the purpose of discussing questions which do not disturb, of necessity, the tranquility of the neighborhood, though held at midnight, would not be an unlawful assembly. If brought before the courts the question would be one for a jury to determine.

Societies, the members whereof are required to take unlawful oaths, or oaths not required by law, or whose names are kept secret from the public at large, are made unlawful by statute 39 G. 3, c. 79, and the members may be proceeded against before any justice, and fined or imprisoned. An exception is made in favor of Quaker meetings and Masonic lodges. All meetings of persons for the purpose of training themselves to the use of arms without authority from the Crown or their justices are also unlawful, and punishment is provided for such by the 60 G. 3, c. 1. The only remaining enactment on this subject is the Riot Act, which empowers a Justice, Sheriff or Mayor, to disperse any persons (if to the number of 12) who shall "unlawfully, riotously, and tumultuously" assemble together "to the disturbance of the public peace," after proclamation is made. If such persons continue together for more than one hour after the making of the proclamation, they will be guilty of felony; and may be arrested by force of arms. A conviction under this act requires proof both of an unlawful assembly and an actual riot; and no assembly (with the exception above mentioned of secret societies, &c.) can be said to be unlawful, unless it be held "in terrorem populi," and be such as would alarm persons of reasonable firmness and courage. The meetings on Wednesday and last Saturday night were not therefore unlawful.

The Court of Quarter Sessions met yesterday; Justices Langford, Pemberton and Nagle on the bench. The Grand Jury were informed that there were no cases requiring their attention. It was empaneled, however, and brought in a report.—The case of George Sandrie will be tried before a Special Commission.

CORRECTION.—In our last issue a mistake occurred in publishing the clauses in the instructions to the representatives of Victoria district, which were objectionable to the signers. Instead of clause 11 being to restrict the duration of the Assembly to two years, it should have been: "11. No salaried officer of the government shall be entitled to vote, or to be a member of the Assembly."

PUBLIC MEETING.

A requisition signed by ten or twelve persons was presented to S. Franklin, Esq., the Chairman of the meeting on Saturday, to call a public meeting to appoint a committee in accordance with the motion of Capt. King, to reconsider the resolutions which were passed on Saturday. Accordingly, a meeting was called on Wednesday evening, and Assembly Hall was crowded to excess. Mr. S. Franklin took the Chair, and Mr. John Copland was made Secretary. The requisitionists were then in a most miserable plight, not knowing what to do—no practical motion, suggestion, or object was brought by them before the meeting. They had it all to themselves for some time, croaking as intelligibly as a lot of bull-frogs. They wanted to do something, they knew not what. Except an occasional exclamation—"Universal suffrage"—the proceedings were the veriest jumble imaginable, showing conclusively to any reflecting person, that the requisitionists lacked a balance wheel; that it was doubtful whether they should be trusted to vote on a property qualification; and that giving them the manhood suffrage would be as absurd as giving children edged tools. The confusion and chaffering between the Chairman and requisitionists at last partially subsided, when Mr. Ring came forward as the leader of the forlorn hope of Universal Sufferers, and moved "that a committee of seven be appointed to reconsider (?) the Franchise Bill of the Assembly." Mr. Alston moved that the requisitionists retire so that the rest of the meeting could enjoy themselves, but this was ruled out of order. Mr. Hicks moved that the meeting endorse the resolutions presented to the members of Victoria District (ruled out of order). Messrs. Ring, King, Davis, Shanks, Stronach and Wight, and one or two others tried hard—poor fellows—to show the necessity for a committee; but when they got through their speeches, the subject was as clear as a bell. Mr. General Carey also came forward, with the most patronising air imaginable, not to offer an opinion, but to learn the wishes of the people. His remarks were equivalent to saying: do not ask the Assembly or Council for anything, ask me. I am the person to do what you want. It was viewed as a misfortune that the able movers for a committee were unable to instruct the young gentleman. Messrs. Hicks, Young, Pidwell, Alston, DeCosmos and Clark spoke well and sensibly; so effectually that on a division the motion was lost. This, in effect, was a direct endorsement of the action of those who presented the instructions to the members for Victoria, and was a complete failure for the requisitionists. After division on the vote, the meeting dispersed.

THEATRICAL.—Last evening the impromptu Theatre in Reid & McDonald's warehouse was filled to overflowing by some 400 persons, including the elite of the Colony, to witness the amateur performances given by the officers of H. M. S. Ganges, for the benefit of the Royal Hospital. The pieces represented were: Boots at the Swan, the Irish Lion, and It's All a Farce. The characters were well cast, and the acting of a high order. In fact each piece was so amusing and so well played that we never saw an audience better pleased.

The steamer Eliza Anderson arrived yesterday from British Columbia, with about 75 passengers.

Gov. Douglas had arrived at New Westminster yesterday morning, from up river.

A new road, it is said, will be constructed from Fort Yale to Thompson river, the Government subscribing $5000 to the stock.

The Col. Moody will not go to Douglas again till the river rises.

STATE CHURCH AGAIN.

VICTORIA, V. I., Oct. 6, 1859.

EDITOR BRITISH COLONIST:

SIR:—I beg through your columns to call public attention to the startling fact that there already exists in these young Colonies, an embryo State Church. The arrangement recently made public, by which three-fourths of the salary of the Rev. E. Cridge is made a charge on the public funds, would be sufficient to show that we have already the germ of this evil fully formed in our midst. But from returns to the Imperial Parliament, just received, it appears that a Clergy Reserve of two thousand one hundred and eighteen acres of land has been set apart in Victoria District alone. Similar reservations may, for aught we know, have been made in other Districts. The returns just alluded to also show, that the Bishop of British Columbia, shortly to arrive, together with the Rev. Messrs. Gammage and Crickmer, come here, not merely as missionaries of the Episcopal body, in which capacity they deserve to be cordially welcomed, but also as appointees of Government. Their names appear in the same list as those of the Governor, Chief Justice, Attorney General, &c., as belonging to the staff of Government officials for the sister Colony. The list is headed "Appointments, &c., created by Her Majesty's Government." There can be little doubt that either Clergy Reserves have been already made in British Columbia, or that the making of them will be one of the earliest steps to be taken after his Lordship's arrival.

Now, Sir, permit me respectfully to ask my fellow-subjects if they are content that Church Endowments should be made in these young regions at the rate of two thousand acres of land per district? And are they prepared for the struggling, jealousy and unseemly strife that must ensue if the incubus of a State Church is laid on us? If not, let protest and petition at once be resorted to, that this threatened evil may if possible be averted.

In view of the history of other British Colonies, and especially in view of the declaration of Sir E. B. Lytton, when acknowledging the munificence of Miss Burdett Coutts, that it had ceased to be the policy of Great Britain to make State endowments of religion in the Colonies, there is reason to believe that protest and petition would not be resorted to in vain.

So long as the Episcopal body has her Countesses, she can surely afford to dispense with Clergy Reserves. And, as Sir E. B. Lytton justly observes, the spirit of self-sacrifice and devotion awakened when she is "thrown upon the voluntary efforts of her children, both abroad and at home," is richer wealth than "the ampler resources of the State." Respectfully yours,

W. F. CLARK.

STORE BREAKING.—On Wednesday evening an attempt was made to break into the store of T. Phelan, corner of Yates and Government streets. The burglar had opened the door about half way, when he was disturbed. He ran into Broad street, tumbled over a pig, and dropped an empty sack, but finally escaped pursuit.

The House of Assembly did not meet yesterday; but will meet to-day at 3 P. M.

The steamship Forwood left Esquimalt yesterday afternoon for San Francisco. She carried down a considerable number of passengers.

GOLD DUST.—Wells, Fargo & Co. shipped per Forwood yesterday, $18,801; Freeman & Co., $14,135.

A communication, to receive attention, must be accompanied by the name of the writer.

GRAND JURY REPORT.

The Grand Jury beg to call the attention of the Court to the necessity of some provision for the prevention and extinguishment of Fires, and would respectfully remind it of previous recommendations offered by Grand Juries.

They would further recommend that the most strenuous exertions be made to have the police force punctually paid.

The attention of the Court is particularly directed to the streets at the upper part of the town, which as the rainy season is approaching, will soon become impassable, unless something be done for their improvement.

On visiting the jail, the general condition of it was found satisfactory; but one of the water closets require immediate attention, as the effluvia it emits is calculated to effect the health of the prisoners.

It was a source of great surprise to find the prisoners deprived of every description of reading matter, which they would strongly recommend as an act of humanity.

On inspecting the Royal Hospital we have much pleasure in stating that we found it in a most creditable condition, reflecting great praise on the Superintendents of the establishment. We are happy to find the small number of six patients well cared for, and sincerely hope that some available means will be found to improve the financial condition of an institution deserving of liberal support.

The Grand Jury beg to say for the information of the Court that they were in attendance punctually at ten o'clock, the hour appointed for their appearance. They hope for the future that all persons eligible to serve as jurors, will be called upon to do so in rotation, that the duty may not so frequently fall upon the same persons.

VICTORIA, October. 6, 1859.

EDITOR COLONIST:—It was my intention at the meeting of Wednesday evening, to have fully replied to the charge of personality but being prevented, I beg to do so through your columns.

Looking upwards was qualified as an insulting attitude! On that charge I will repeat what I have already stated:

When my friend Ring would tell a story about a snake and poor man sleeping; Touched by a sad memento mori, I raised my eye to keep from weeping.

The use of the word "snob" on which the talented Thackeray has written an elaborate work and applied the epithet to all classes of men, is characterized as something monstrous, ("Que capit ille fecit.") Now how did this happen?

When Liberty was scorn'd and snubbed, A word was used deemed quite improper; But though her champion I was dubbed, 'Twas she that spoke: I could not stop her.

But I am willing to make every allowance for the annoyances to which editors are subjected, and though justice has not been done me in reporting, and characterizing what I did say, I admit that—

When unwise men will publish papers, Expecting wiser ones to take them, 'Tis nat'ral they should have the vapors, When they find out 'tis like to break them.

Oh!—We sincerely condole with the Absentee Organ in consequence of the defeat at the meeting on Wednesday. The light-headedness manifested in the leader in the "Supplement" yesterday is no doubt entirely due to disappointment. Exercise has been recommended in such cases: friction of the soles of the feet, change of atmosphere—travelling to British Columbia, for instance, would no doubt restore a patient so afflicted. Besides, as universal suffrage is nothing more nor less than natural right; and as the majority of the inhabitants of that Colony are Indians exercising that right to the fullest extent, it would be a congenial field. The other inhabitants of the colony are doubtless as justly entitled to it, if universal suffrage, as the organ has it, is the panacea for all social evils. But it appears strange that this doctrine will not agree with the assertion in the Times' article on the Executive Council, that British Columbia "was not yet prepared for representative institutions." Is there not something wrong with the thought-making machine, when it asserts one week that men are not fitted for representative institutions; and the next week that universal suffrage is the panacea for all the social evils of this and the adjoining Colony? If any one has a balance wheel, perhaps a market can be found for it. The Times don't want any, so you need not apply there.
